

-  Teachers' knowledge of children's literature and other texts
-  Teachers' knowledge of children's reading practices
-  Reading for pleasure pedagogy
 - Social reading environments
 - Reading aloud
 - Independent reading
 - Informal book talk
-  Reading Teachers: teachers who read and readers who teach
-  Reading communities

Want to enrich your own knowledge of children's literature?

Do you want to know how to develop children's pleasure in reading?

Interested in developing your own reading for pleasure practice?

Join Rebecca and B for the University of Manchester Teachers as Readers Group!

Rebecca Simpson-Hargreaves from the University of Manchester and B Guerriero University of Manchester Alumni invites trainee teachers committed to developing children's desire, delight and engagement as readers to join the OU/UKLA Teachers as Readers Group. Informal, friendly and supportive, we will be exploring engaging resources to support your learning journey in all aspects of Reading for Pleasure pedagogy. A great way to work with your peers and be part of a great support network!

Committing to all five sessions will enable you to develop evidence-informed practice, widening your knowledge of stunning literature and other texts written for children and documenting the impact on school practice or yourselves as readers.

Session Dates: 22nd September 2022, 20th October, 26th January 2023, 16th March, 30th June

Time: 4:15--5:30pm Sign up by emailing: rebecca.simpson-hargreaves@manchester.ac.uk

Sessions will be in person in the same room that Primary PGCE English sessions are held except the final session which will take place on the final day of the course – place to be confirmed (see Teamup Calendar).

Why not sign up for Reading for Pleasure newsletter?
<https://ourfp.org/news/>

